The Program aims to focus on the following areas:

The second module will focus on learning about one's leadership styles and group processes. In simulated group situations, participants will get opportunities to identify their own leadership styles and the consequences on other team members and also to develop skills in the management of conflict. Conflict Management runs parallel with Managerial Leadership. Therefore, this module is designed to help participants in: (a) Understanding their own Conflict Management Styles, (b) Diagnosing different conflict situations, and (c) dealing with Conflict in a productive and manageable ways.

■ Module 3: The Manager as Change Agent

How does the Manager cope with Change? How does he or she participate as a Change Agent in the process of initiating and managing Change? This module focuses on the conditions, values and strategies by which Managers can become responsive to Change.

PEDAGOGY

Concept sessions, diagnostic instruments, group activity through breakout rooms, and case study discussions.

WHO MAY ATTEND

The Programme has been specifically designed for Senior executives in Public/Private Sector, Multinational and Government Organisations, both Central and State. A minimum of five years of senior management experience and the age group 30-50 years is a desirable consideration. Our experience shows that an organisation gets an optimum return from the Programme when it sponsors a team of 2 - 4 senior managers who have direct work relationships and who, on return to the organisation, can draw upon each other's skills to transfer the learning to the work situation. Although Managerial Leadership and Conflict Resolution is designed for managers from any functional department such as Production, Operations, Finance, Marketing, etc. HRD Managers may find it especially useful.

PARTICIPANTS' FEEDBACK

When you come for a managerial program, engagement is something which one looks for. The same has been provided to the required level. The program has been a right blend of experience and academia. The personal touch which has been provided by the faculty, the detail of each and everything they do speaks a lot about the institution and its faculty. All in all a great program.

My experience in the program was very good. They have a well-researched teaching style; teaching by making us experience the situation and thus the learnings are coming from within us. They are born out of our own experiences, our team's situation and experiences. The faculty is so erudite; they have done an excellent job. Our scores show that we have really changed for the better and in better ways.

This programme has helped me to recognise my limitations and given feedback on areas to improve. The programme contents emphasized on arriving at consensus during team work with collaboration and interaction. Thankful to all the faculty members.
